No benefit deductions on the May 5 paycheck

Your May 5 paycheck may be a little fatter thanks to a triple pay period in April. Asante deducts medical, dental and vision contributions twice monthly, which means that twice a year employees enrolled in a benefits plan get a breather when three pay periods fall in a single month.

This includes deductions for flexible spending accounts and health savings accounts (but not retirement plan contributions).

Likewise, eligible employees won't see their wellness discount — earned by completing the Know Your Numbers program — or premium assistance earnings on that paycheck because both correspond to the medical deduction. Deductions and any associated earnings will resume with the May 19 paycheck.

For more details on which deductions are taken from each paycheck, please review the 2017 payroll and contribution calendar posted to UltiPro (My Benefits > General Benefit Information > 2017 Benefits Payroll Calendar).
