ALEC: Asante Fall Prevention Education

Employees at all three Asante hospitals have a new assignment that's due by June 30: Completion of an online education module on fall prevention from ALEC, Asante's learning management system. The module, which takes 10 to 15 minutes to complete, is mandatory for all clinical and nonclinical staff.

According to the Institute for Clinical Systems Improvement – an independent, nonprofit health-care improvement organization – “all clinical and non-clinical staff should understand the hospital's policies and procedures in place for the prevention of falls.” Asante, which is emphasizing patient safety in its current PEAK Awards program, has simplified its annual fall prevention education this year but extended it to all employees, regardless of role.

The education module, which is being administered by Nursing Professional Development, is intended to help promote a culture of safety and excellence in patient care.

To access the fall prevention module, employees should login to ALEC with their usernames and passwords, then click on “My Learning.” A link to the education module will be under the “Assigned Learning” heading.

ALEC (HealthStream) is a system used to assign required educational modules to staff, enable registration for training classes and view tutorials.
