They Baked, They Sold, They Gave

When a group of Ashland High School students needed to choose a charitable cause to support, the decision was simple: Asante Ashland Community Hospital Family Birth Center and the Children's Miracle Network.

On Thursday, the school's Interact Club visited the hospital to present a check for $300, which included a $100 matching gift from the Rotary Club of Ashland. The students raised the money through a bake sale in November.

Kevin Bendaw from Asante Foundation was on hand to accept the gift, along with Lisette Jarmon, nursing supervisor at Ashland Family Birth Center (pictured in the back row, left).

For many of the students, the hospital holds a special place in their lives: Many of them were born there.

"Most of us felt a personal connection," said student Claire Pryor.

The gift will be used to support services or equipment to enhance patient care at the Family Birth Center.
